The installer has long since ceased trading but some has suggested that it is likely to be the back up battery that needs replacing. As Ive lost the manual, I have no idea what battery I need nor whats involved in replacing the battery. As I know the code needed to turn on and turn off the alarm I dont need this but Im unsure whether other codes may be needed to change the back up battery. Many thanks Put a sticker on the front of the alarm box, giving the date you fit the new battery, and keep a note that many battery manufactures recommend they have a 5 year lifespan. Obviously this is actually related to how many times it has had to operate due to supply failure and the size of the alarm system it has to power. But even so as they are not too expensive it is wise to just replace the battery every 5 years anyway to avoid erratic operation of the system. Ill post back when Ive had a go. Only concern is that there is a different antitamper code, when I take the cover off. Noted that the battery is a Global Yausa ES 3.2.12 12v 3.2Ah battery.
